

Co-Combustion of Sludge through the process of incineration is an effective disposal and resource recovery parts are often not locally available. With an existing solid